The Cooper Rose
 Sunderland

This building stands on the site of three private residences, similar to the adjacent properties built in the early 19th century. This short row was called Albion Place. Dr Henry Renney ('Public Vaccinator' for Sunderland) was living at Albion Place in 1890. Ten years later, his thoughts on public vaccination were published in the British Medical Journal. He advocated the use of the Cooper Rose vaccinator which he carried with 'half an ounce of antiseptic, more than enough for nine arms'.
